

This correspondence is included in the Glasscock papers (DP/29/31/32) at Hertfordshire Archives and Local Studies and is reproduced with their kind permission.

Newington House,
Wallingford, Oxon

June 23

Dear Sir

I send this from London, but give you my country address as I am about to return home. My grandfather Sir Geo Jackson, who took the name of Duckett, resided at Roydon from about the middle of the last century on the River Stort, near where it runs into and joins the Lea. He was constantly at Stortford but not exactly as a Resident. He first formed the idea of making the River Stort navigable from his living at Roydon, being then at the Admiralty. You had better consult at the British Museum my work "Duchetiana" in which you will find my Grandfather's Diary of the proceedings of opening the River for navigation. No work on the Stort would be complete without this, & his diary is in my possession, so much as relates to Stortford being given by me in Duchetiana, & if any mention is made of it by you, be kind enough to ack-

Newington House
Wallingford, Oxon
June 23

Dear Sir

I send this from London, but give you my country address, as I am about to return home.

My grandfather Sir Geo Jackson, who took the name of Duckett, resided at Roydon from about the middle of last century, on the river Stort, near where it runs into & joins the River Lea.

He was constantly at Stortford, but not exactly as a Resident.

He first formed the idea of making the River Stort navigable, from his living at Roydon, being then at the Admiralty.

You had better consult at the British Museum my work "Duchetiana", in which you will find my Grandfather's Diary of the proceedings of opening the River for navigation. No work on Stortford would be complete without this, & his diary is in my possession, so much as relates to Stortford being given by me in Duchetiana, & if any mention is made of it by you, be kind enough to ack-

knowledge the source.
My father at one time
was a constant attendant at the Sessions as a Magistrate at Stortford, and built the House now occupied by Mrs Taylor
at the head of the Navigation, and both he and my grandfather used to visit Mr Clough (opposite the Church) on these occasions.
Further than what I
state, neither were permanent residents at Stortford.
My grandfather died

knowledge the source.
My father at one time
was a constant attendant at
the Sessions as a Magistrate at Stortford, & built the House
now occupied by Mrs Taylor
at the head of the Navigation, & both he & my grandfather used
to visit Mr Clough (opposite the Church) on these occasions.
Further than what I
state, neither were permanent
residents at Stortford.
My grandfather died

at 15 Upper Grosvr St, London in 1822, & was buried at Bishop Stortford aged 98
My father was buried by his own desire in Kensal Green

Believe me
faithfully yours
G F Duckett

J L Glasscock Esq

at 15 Upper Grosv. St, London
in 1822, & was buried at
Bishop Stortford aged 98
My father was buried by
his own desire in Kensal Green
Believe me
faithfully yours
G F Duckett
J. L. Glasscock Esq

Newington, Wallingford, Oxon
Dec 7th

Dear Sir, I should have returned from here before, but have been much occupied. I do not quite know what sort of information you want more than in my Paper "Duchetiana" There are a good many odds and ends told of him. His opening of the Stort is in his own handwriting. He conceived the first ideas of making it navigable when he was at the Admiralty,

Newington, Wallingford, Oxon
Dec 7th
Dear Sir I should have returned from here before, but have been much occupied.
I do not quite know what sort of information you want more than in my Paper "Duchetiana"
There are a good many odds and ends told of him. His opening of the Stort is in his own handwriting. He conceived the first ideas of making it navigable when he was at the Admiralty.

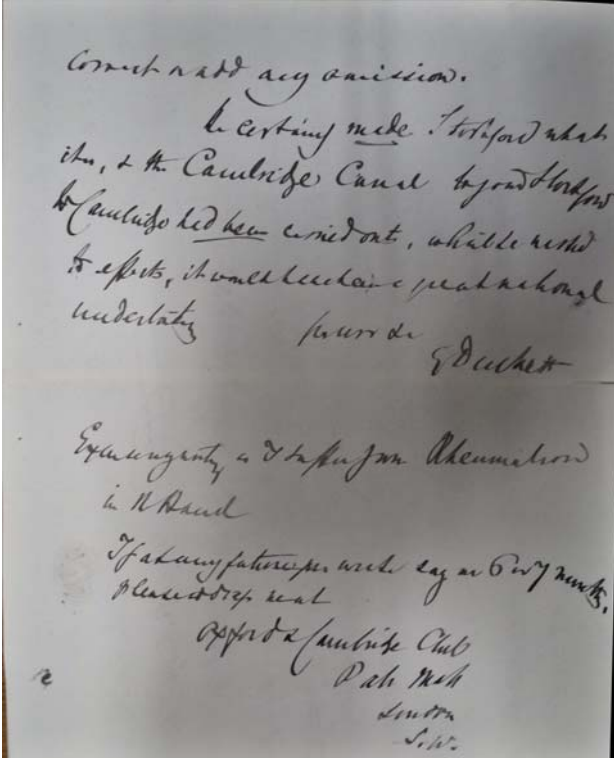

having bought Roydon Lodge, to run down to, to get a little air & relaxation from Office life He was of the vast age of 98 when he died, & being a young man at the time was quite close to Lord Balmerino when he was beheaded in 1748. His (Actually 18th Aug 1746) grandfather had also seen Henry Jenkins fishing in the Swale for trout. This H Jenkins was born 8. Hen VIII. (1517)
If you print any words send me a proof, I can having bought Roydon Lodge, to run down to, to get a little air & relaxation from Office life

He was of the vast age of 98 when he died, & being a young man at the time was quite close to Lord Balmerino when he was beheaded in 1748. His grandfather had also seen Henry Jenkins fishing in the Swale for trout. This H Jenkins was born 8. Hen VIII.
If you print any words send me a proof, I can correct or add any omissions

He certainly made Stortford what it is, & the Cambridge Canal to join Stortford to Cambridge had been carried out, which he wished to effect, it would have been a great national undertaking
Yours etc.,
G Duckett

Excuse my writing as I suffer from Rheumatism
in the Hand

If at any future you write say in 6 or 7
months
please address me at Oxford & Cambridge Club
Pall Mall
London
S.W.

Correct or add any omissions.
He certainly made Stortford what
it is, & the Cambridge Canal to join Stortford
to Cambridge had been carried out, which he wished
to effect, it would have been a great national undertaking
Yours etc.
G Duckett

Excuse my writing as I suffer from Rheumatism
in the Hand

If at any future you write say in 6 or 7
months
please address me at Oxford & Cambridge Club
Pall Mall
London
S.W.

Sir George Floyd Duckett (1811- 1902)

b. 27 Mar 1811, Hartham, Wiltshire .

Duckett was commissioned on 4 May 1832 a sub-lieutenant in the second regiment of life guards. Faced by beggary with his father's bankruptcy, Duckett exchanged in 1834 into the 15th hussars, and then into the 82nd regiment, in which he remained until 1839. when he went into the 87th fusiliers.

Duckett concentrated himself on the compilation of a 'Technological Military Dictionary' in German, English, and French. To make the work accurate, he obtained leave to visit the arsenals of Woolwich, Paris, Brussels, and Berlin. To complete his task he retired on half-pay. The work was published in 1848, and its merits were recognised abroad but at home was ignored.

On the death of his father on 15 June 1856 he became third baronet.

He abandoned interest in military matters, and thenceforth devoted himself to archaeological and genealogical studies, to which he brought immense industry but small judgment or historical scholarship. In 1869 he published his exhaustive 'Duchetiana, or Historical and Genealogical Memoirs of the Family of Duket, from the Conquest to the Present Time' (enlarged edit. 1874). Subsequently blindness put an end to his literary activities.

He was elected F.S.A. on 11 Feb. 1869. He died at Cleeve House, Cleeve, Somerset, on 13 May 1902, at the age of ninety-one, and was buried in the cemetery at Wells. He married on 21 June 1845 Isabella (d. 31 Dec. 1901), but had no issue, and the baronetcy became extinct.